

Frequently Asked Questions

How can I send my pictures to you? You may mail them, but I prefer to have pictures sent via email. If you only have hard copies of your pictures, you can scan them or have them scanned.

My stillborn looks very swollen; can you still do a portrait? Yes. I have made several portraits of stillborn babies that were very swollen. I gently soften the swelling in the drawing.

What is the cost of your portraits? I have 3 prices for stillborn portraits, depending on the size you prefer.

A hand drawn portrait can create a beautiful memory to a life.

Debbie Lamb, artist of Drawn By Debbie, creates stillborn memorial portraits with warmth and love.

About the Artist

“I started drawing portraits of stillborn babies in 2007. The first person to ask me to do this wanted a special gift for his wife. When she received it, she called to personally thank me for the portrait she would treasure for the rest of her life.

It is my goal to help every bereaved parent have a portrait of their baby to proudly hang in their home. Hopefully, the portrait will become a treasured keepsake and help ease the pain of having nothing to display.

It is my hope to provide grieving parents with comfort knowing they have the option of having a portrait made of their baby at any week of life.”

Testimonials

“The finished product was AMAZING and absolutely perfect! The attention to detail was beautiful and Debbie's talent really shone through. Debbie was able to take the comments I made, the photo of Zachary and the photos on my other children and turn them into a true work of art. The end result was a drawing that I am proud to display in my family room along with our other family photos. I was so excited to see what my son would have looked like and how beautiful he would have been. I was in awe of the fact that Debbie was able to copy tiny details like the delicate way his hands laid across his chest and the turn of his feet so perfectly.”

--Heather Thompson

“Like many loss moms I felt like there was no proof, nothing to show for such a profound loss in my life. I didn't have something I could proudly display in my home. The only picture I have of my sons is the very real, very raw photo of death, it is quite disturbing to some people. I was able to work with Debbie to develop a picture of my sons, as I would like to have known them. She has allowed me to have a picture I can lovingly show to everyone. It is on display in my home. I have also used electronic versions of the picture online to show people pictures of all my children. It sounds hokey to say, but having a picture of my sons has really completed me.”
